The Second Research Seminar - Call for Papers

This network seeks to build a sustainable group of European and other key international experts (young scientists as well as established researchers and practitioners) from different disciplines and methodological perspectives with the objective of identifying gaps in research in the areas of gender, entrepreneurship and structural transformation. The meetings will be a starting point and will be opened to researchers from diverse countries and regions. The interdisciplinary and international composition of the network coordinators and anticipated participants will enable the development of new and innovative research designs to find solutions for the problem that the entrepreneurial discourse is still gendered and is still ignoring regional and structural barriers and conditions. The planned outcome will be the development of multi-disciplinary models to explain how entrepreneurship has been developed in industrial heartlands and how it – in particular from a gender perspective - influences/contributes to structural transformation. As such, it will contribute to the debate on entrepreneurship, SMEs and innovation in Europe and worldwide.

The second seminar is going to focus two selected aspects of the general theme “Entrepreneurship, Gender and Structural Transformation” as an outcome of the first seminar. The embedding of the aspects in the general topic of the network is explicitly requested. Theoretical and empirical papers are welcome. We are happy to receive abstracts on your research findings as well as idea sketches on methods and perspectives to deal with the below mentioned questions as well as collections of research questions or research gaps.

(Women) entrepreneurship from a regional perspective/ concerning regional aspects

- Regional discourses on entrepreneurship
- Discourses on entrepreneurship, self-employment and entrepreneurial thinking and activity
- Gendered policies and the effects on women entrepreneurship
- Culture of entrepreneurship in transforming regions/ in economic change
- Promotion of entrepreneurship

New Approaches of Entrepreneurship Education

The second focus is Entrepreneurial Education. Within regions the promotion of entrepreneurship and the building up of entrepreneurial eco-systems is often directly related to the higher education institutions within the specific region and their outcome of highly-qualified graduates and potential founders.

- Entrepreneurial Education – how does it work?
- Objectives and content of Entrepreneurial Education for
 - o (specific) target groups
 - o transformative regions
- Educational design, teaching arrangements, innovative methods, learning location
- Train the trainer – qualification of teaching staff
- Institutional involvement in Entrepreneurship Education
- Impact of Entrepreneurial Education and measurement of outcomes

The seminar will be held on 6th November 2013, University of Duisburg – Essen. For the evening of November 5th the organisers are planning an informal meeting for all, who are interested.

Presentations and relevant information will also be made available electronically at <http://entrepreneurgendertransformation.wordpress.com/> and further outlets for publication and dissemination are also going to be planned.

Guest speaker:

Professor em. Dr Franz Lehner, Research Fellow at the Institut Arbeit und Technik (IAT)/ Institute for Work and Technology, University of Applied Sciences Gelsenkirchen
